Q3. Examine how citizenship in India functions as a tool for nation building? Why has it failed to guarantee full and equal participation of diverse communities? Discuss with relevant constitutional provision and recent developments.

Relationship

- Citizenship establishes the legal and political bond between individual and state and helps individual with the right to participate in the political, social and economic life of the state. Citizenship plays a crucial role in nation building as it defines nation as sovereign state which will grant individual their rights which could be social, civic, legal, democratic etc. and since India is a democratic nation therefore duties are of moral binding in nature such as cognitive and moral.

Secondly, citizenship creates a sense of belongingness and encourages individual to engage in nation building.

Citizenship consists of exclusive and inclusive nature and due to following reasons there is failure in guaranteeing full and equal participation to diverse communities -

1. INTERSECTIONALITY

Due to overlapping social identities it creates compounded discrimination and limiting rights i.e. an upper caste faces patriarchy from marginalised caste.

Ex:- Patriarchal norms

- Economic poverty
- Geographic isolation

2. ECONOMIC DIMENSION

Due to wealth gaps there is unequal access and exercising of citizenship right.

Because poverty restricts to limited opportunities

Ex:- A 1990 Oxfam report 1% population has access to 40.5% of wealth and due to this there is increased poverty, malnutrition and unemployment, have

B. FROM INCLUSION TO EXCLUSION

1971

1986

REFUGEE ACT 1950 → CAA 2019

REFUGEE ACT 1971 → CAA 2019

REFUGEE ACT 1986 → CAA 2019

REFUGEE ACT 1986 → NRC

good

- After independence our citizenship rights are highly exclusive in nature which is evident from Article 5-10 where all articles talk about inclusion except article 9.
- Then Assam accord (1985) identified March 24, 1971 as the cutoff date for recognising migrants.
- CAA 1986 required proof of ancestral residency before the cut-off date, making citizenship right more restrictive.
- National register of citizen (NRC) was updated during 1985 in Assam to detect illegal migrants and it has challenges like documentation gaps and human right concern.
- CAA 2019 gave citizenship to other groups like Rohingyas, Sri Lankans, Tamil, Afghans and Bangladeshis who entered India before Dec 31, 2014. It is clear that how with changing times citizens are deprived of their fundamental rights.

full and equal participation.

4. INCREASED GLOBALISATION

due to increasing globalisation and integration of global economy and need to reflect its global aspiration there is development of Quasi citizenship in India which faded the inclusivity of citizenship rights.

RECENT DEVELOPMENTS THAT FADED INCLUSIVITY

1. Shifting towards more capitalist approach
Ex :- Selling off of Air India to Tata

This will create more income inequality and economic disparity

2. Increasing dual identity
ethnic and religious division have intensified in northeast and Assamese identity got fueled with Assamese accord.

3. NRC and CAA 2019
NRC discriminates especially marginalized groups to have proper documents and exclusion from NRC leads to fear of statelessness and discrimination.

CA 2019 violates article 14 i.e. Equality before law and creates threat to secularism.

Thus, Romila Thapar on this book "On Citizenship" recommended that a non-discriminatory framework for addressing refugee and immigrant should be developed which should be guided by international principle of non-refoulement and Ni-Ram said rights based approach with focus on inclusion should be done to maintain balance between security and inclusivity.

Q. Critically analyze how cultural diversity in India leads to the emergence of regions as stronger cultural units than states. To what extent have regional deprivation and developmental benefits driven the formation of new states? Discuss the creation of a second State reorganization commission in this context.

India, that is Bharat, shall be union of states". This statement reflects the philosophy of unity in diversity, addressing India's dual identity and territorial framework.

~~Being a diverse nation, rigidly over-protective states can lead to demand of a partition of India. So keeping the regional aspiration in mind unity of India has been preserved till date.~~

POSITIVES OF EMERGENCE OF DIFFERENT REGIONS

1. Decentralised Governance

1.1 Granular policy making enable localized decision making addressing socio-economic challenges.

Ex :- Chhattisgarh's development index is better than Madhya Pradesh after former's separation from later:- border changes, majority tribal areas, etc.

2. Administrative efficiency

Smaller geographical units, reduce bureaucratic layers, resulting in streamlined governance.

3. Economic optimisation

Optimum resource utilisation with regional economic priorities.

Ex:- Jharkhand's focus on mining industries

4. Cultural consolidation

Smaller states help protect ethnolinguistic homogeneity and avoiding cultural erosion.

Ex:- Formation of Nagaland helped tribal identities.

CHALLENGES

1. Administrative Proliferation

→ Increased cost :-

Institutional duplicacy

Complex hierarchies

Increasing govt expenditure

Continuous state division can lead to political fragmentation.

Ex :- Demands of bifurcation of Vidarbha from Maharashtra.

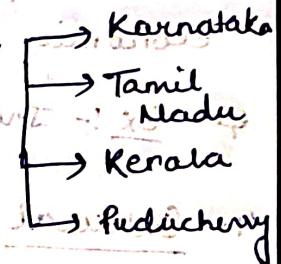

Mithilanchal from Bihar.

3. Challenge of Sharing resources

3.1 Disputes over water, energy and minerals

3.2 Destabilizing relations

Ex :- Country wide water dispute

4. Increasing asymmetry

4. Fiscal Asymmetry

smaller states with weaker economies

become reliant on federal fiscal transfer

5. Increased domino effect

5.1 More demand of separation from state will be fueled.

Ex :- Khalistan from Punjab

Mithilanchal from Bihar.

Regional depopulation and developmental deficits often lead to the formation of new states because -

1. INCREASING DEVELOPMENT BACKWARDNESS

Due to large area sometimes a region is being neglected and gradually there is increased backwardness which lead to its separation from original state.

Ex :- In 2000 Jharkhand is being separated from Bihar because of increased tribal population and its physio-graphic division is also different from the rest of Bihar. After its separation there is improvement in its development.

- Separation of Chattisgarh from Madhya Pradesh
- Separation of Uttarakhand from UP.

2. SEPARATION OF TELANGANA: INTRASTATE DISPARITY

Andhra Pradesh being coastal region often neglects the mainland area which is currently Telangana and it fuelled the demand of its separation.

3. CULTURAL SUBJUGATION

There is Jharkhand with West Bengal where both regions have a different culture and it lead to the demand of separation of Jharkhand from West Bengal. However, it is not being implemented yet.

RELEVANCE OF SECOND REORGANISATION STATE1. EVALUATING STATEHOOD DEMANDS.

✓ 1st state re-organisation commission was made in 1956; with changing times the dynamics has been changed and recent demands needs to be addressed with new regional aspiration.

Extra demand of statehood of Jarkhaland from WB and Ladakh demanding status of 6th schedule.

2. CULTURAL NEED

Cultural subjugation of Jarkhaland needs to be assessed.

3. ECONOMIC NEED

✓ Jarkhaland separation from Maharashtra for administrative efficiency.

Thus, India needs to balance regional aspirations with national integration by strategic planning, collaborative governance, cultural recognition through embracing India's diversity while ensuring its unity.

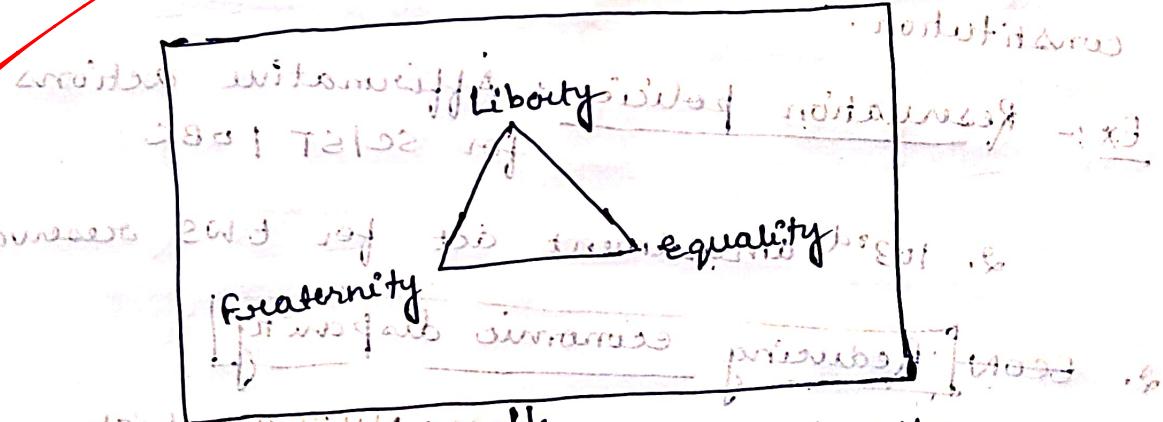

India's integrity remains intact.

ACHIEVEMENTS

1. Addressing social inequality
