

1. Essay Evaluation

1. Consistency

Thematic Uniformity

Strengths:

- The essay maintains a strong thematic focus on globalization, protectionism, and populism.
- The discussion on BREXIT, Atmanirbhar Bharat, platform capitalism, and digital barriers directly relates to the impact of globalization.
- The incorporation of economic, cultural, and political aspects aligns well with the broader theme.

Areas for Improvement:

- Some sections, like the commodification of women and Clash of Civilizations theory, could be better linked to the central argument.
- The essay mentions platform capitalism, but the connection between globalization's benefits and risks could be made more explicit.
- The gig economy discussion is insightful but needs a clearer link to how globalization fuels it.

Suggestions:

- Explicitly tie back each sub-theme to globalization's boon vs bane debate.
- Clarify how protectionism and globalization are influencing gender issues and platform capitalism.
- Summarize how historical shifts (like colonialism and the Cold War) mirror modern trends.

Balanced Coverage

Strengths:

- The essay covers economic, political, and cultural dimensions effectively.

Comprehensive Answer Evaluation Report by PRAGYESH IAS

- The historical analysis of India's protectionist past and later economic liberalization provides good context.
- The role of the US, China, India, and Europe in globalization is addressed.

Areas for Improvement:

- Environmental and ethical dimensions are missing—how does globalization affect climate change, sustainability, and human rights?
- The technological aspect (AI, automation, and digital economy) could be expanded.

Suggestions:

- Briefly mention environmental globalization (carbon footprint, global warming treaties, corporate responsibility).
- Discuss how technology-driven globalization (AI, digital trade, cryptocurrency) is reshaping economies.

Logical Consistency

Strengths:

- The essay follows a historical progression from colonialism → protectionism → liberalization → digital globalization.
- The arguments build up well, leading to the present-day scenario of populism and trade wars.

Areas for Improvement:

- The commodification of women argument, while relevant, needs a stronger link to economic globalization.
- The conclusion states protectionism is not the solution but does not offer an alternative other than equity.

Suggestions:

- Clearly frame globalization as an evolving force—from mercantilism to digital capitalism.
- Explain why globalization's issues should be fixed rather than abandoned.

2. Coherency

Logical Sequence

Strengths:

- The historical background smoothly transitions into modern implications.
- The examples (BREXIT, Atmanirbhar Bharat, Chinese bans) are well-placed.

Areas for Improvement:

- The essay jumps from economic issues to gender issues without a proper bridge.
- The protectionism argument (China, US trade wars) is abruptly placed in the latter half.

Suggestions:

- Rearrange the argument structure as:
  - ① Historical roots of globalization (Colonialism, Industrial Revolution)
  - ② Post-WWII trade order and economic integration (Bretton Woods, WTO, liberalization)
  - ③ Modern challenges (inequality, digital economy, populism, platform capitalism)
  - ④ Protectionism and resistance movements (BREXIT, China-US trade war, self-reliance policies)
  - ⑤ Future outlook—how globalization can be made inclusive

Transitions and Connectors

Strengths:

- Some paragraphs have good flow, particularly the historical evolution of India's trade policies.

Areas for Improvement:

Comprehensive Answer Evaluation Report by PRAGYESH IAS

- The transition from economic issues (gig economy) to social issues (commodification of women) feels forced.
- The discussion on Samuel Huntington's theory is disjointed from the rest of the essay.

Suggestions:

- Use transition phrases like:
  - "Building upon this economic transformation, another challenge arises—gender disparity in global labor markets."
  - "While globalization has facilitated economic progress, it has also fueled ideological and political conflicts, as seen in Huntington's Clash of Civilizations theory."

Thematic Linkage

Strengths:

- The essay effectively links protectionism, populism, and nationalism to globalization's limitations.

Areas for Improvement:

- The "solution section" is weak—how do we fix globalization instead of abandoning it?

Suggestions:

- Propose middle-ground solutions like:
  - Regulated globalization (fair trade policies, global wealth redistribution).
  - Sustainable globalization (green technology, ethical trade).
  - Balanced digital economy (data sovereignty, labor protections).

---

3. Content

Depth and Relevance

Strengths:

Comprehensive Answer Evaluation Report by PRAGYESH IAS

- The essay provides a broad overview of globalization's evolution from colonialism to modern digital capitalism.
- It presents both advantages and disadvantages, making the discussion balanced.
- The inclusion of BREXIT, Atmanirbhar Bharat, China's economic influence, and digital trade barriers strengthens the relevance of the arguments.

Areas for Improvement:

- The analysis remains surface-level in some areas, particularly in explaining the mechanisms behind protectionism and populism.
- The economic discussion could be strengthened with specific data on trade flows, GDP impact, and employment shifts.
- The essay mentions populism and nationalism, but their causal relationship with globalization needs deeper analysis.

Suggestions:

- Include data points to quantify the impact of globalization (e.g., WTO reports on trade volumes, IMF data on globalization-driven GDP growth).
- Explain why populist movements (such as Trump's America First, India's Make in India) have risen in response to globalization.
- Clarify how globalization shaped wealth inequality using examples like Thomas Piketty's theory on capital accumulation.

---

Factual Accuracy

Strengths:

- The essay correctly discusses India's economic liberalization in the 1990s and its impact on IT sector growth.
- The BREXIT argument is well-supported by its link to protectionism and populism.
- The mention of Samuel Huntington's "Clash of Civilizations" theory is factually correct.

Areas for Improvement:

Comprehensive Answer Evaluation Report by PRAGYESH IAS

- Some statements lack supporting evidence (e.g., China's Belt and Road Initiative's global impact could be quantified with statistics).
- The essay states that India moved away from globalization in the colonial era, but India was actually deeply integrated into the British global trade system.

Suggestions:

- Clarify that India's pre-independence economy was part of global trade but under colonial exploitation.
- Provide figures on China's BRI investment ($1.3 trillion in infrastructure projects worldwide).
- Mention trade deficit data to support protectionist policies (e.g., US trade deficit with China in 2023 exceeded $300 billion).

Balanced Perspective

Strengths:

- The essay effectively presents both benefits and challenges of globalization.
- Opportunities (economic growth, technology transfer, market expansion) and challenges (inequality, loss of sovereignty, environmental concerns) are well-explored.

Areas for Improvement:

- The solutions section is limited—it suggests that protectionism is not the solution, but does not propose concrete alternatives.
- The cultural impact of globalization (spread of Western consumerism vs. preservation of local identities) is underexplored.

Suggestions:

- Propose alternative solutions:
  - ① Fair trade agreements instead of extreme protectionism.
  - ② Global governance mechanisms to regulate corporate influence.
  - ③ Sustainability-driven globalization with green policies.
- Discuss how Western culture's dominance through media and brands affects cultural identities.

Multidimensional Approach

✓ Strengths:

- Covers economic, political, and social aspects in-depth.
- Includes historical evolution (colonialism → industrialization → digital globalization).

✗ Areas for Improvement:

- The environmental dimension is missing—globalization contributes to climate change through industrialization and trade-based emissions.
- The ethical perspective (labor exploitation, corporate monopolization) needs elaboration.

💡 Suggestions:

- Add climate change and globalization discussions (e.g., global carbon footprint, international climate treaties, green supply chains).
- Discuss ethical concerns like child labor, sweatshops, and corporate monopolization (e.g., Amazon's labor conditions).

Examples and Case Studies

✓ Strengths:

- Uses real-world examples like BREXIT, Atmanirbhar Bharat, and China's economic rise.
- References Samuel Huntington's theory, which adds intellectual weight to the discussion.

✗ Areas for Improvement:

- The digital economy and gig economy discussion lacks case studies—Uber, Amazon, and remote work trends should be mentioned.
- The commodification of women section could benefit from real-world reports on wage gaps and labor exploitation.

Suggestions:

- Add case studies on how globalization has driven the gig economy (e.g., Uber, Upwork, and Amazon's labor practices).
- Reference ILO (International Labour Organization) reports on wage exploitation in globalized industries.

4. Introduction

Engaging Hook

Strengths:

- The essay begins with a strong statement on globalization's impact on populism and protectionism.
- The use of BREXIT as a hook is effective in capturing interest.

Areas for Improvement:

- The opening could be made more compelling by using a thought-provoking question, quote, or striking statistic.

Suggestions:

- Open with a powerful statistic:
"In 1990, global trade accounted for 39% of GDP; by 2021, it was over 60%—but who really benefits?"
- Use a quote from an economist or world leader:
"Globalization makes the world smaller, but inequality larger." — Joseph Stiglitz

Context Setting

Strengths:

- The introduction mentions key themes (globalization, populism, and economic shifts).
- It establishes a historical background (India's colonial trade, industrialization).

Comprehensive Answer Evaluation Report by PRAGYESH IAS

✖ Areas for Improvement:

- The introduction does not clearly define globalization or explain its modern significance.
- Some key terms like "protectionism" and "platform capitalism" are used without definition.

💡 Suggestions:

- Clearly define globalization:
  - "Globalization refers to the increasing interconnectedness of economies, cultures, and politics through trade, technology, and migration."
- Introduce the two major perspectives:
  - ① Globalists: Argue that free trade and open markets bring prosperity.
  - ② Protectionists: Claim that local industries and jobs suffer due to globalization.

Central Theme or Thesis Statement

✓ Strengths:

- The introduction hints at the central debate: Is globalization a boon or bane?
- It frames protectionism as a response to globalization's failures.

✖ Areas for Improvement:

- The thesis statement is implicit, but should be clearly stated.
- The scope of the essay (economic, political, cultural impacts) is not previewed in the introduction.

💡 Suggestions:

- Clearly state the central thesis in one sentence:
"While globalization has fueled economic progress and global connectivity, it has also exacerbated inequalities, fueled protectionist movements, and reshaped labor markets—making it a double-edged sword that must be regulated rather than rejected."
- Preview the dimensions covered in the essay:

Comprehensive Answer Evaluation Report by PRAGYESH IAS

- "This essay will examine globalization's economic, political, cultural, and technological impact, analyzing both its benefits and challenges."

5. Conclusion ☰

Summarizing the Core Argument

✓ Strengths:

- The conclusion reinforces the central dilemma—globalization has both benefits and drawbacks.
- It correctly rejects extreme protectionism as an alternative to globalization.
- The mention of equitable distribution of globalization's benefits adds a social justice angle.

✗ Areas for Improvement:

- The summary is somewhat scattered—it touches on various aspects but lacks a crisp, synthesized closing statement.
- The final paragraph introduces new ideas (marginalization, vulnerability), which should have been discussed earlier.
- No clear restatement of the thesis—it should explicitly connect back to the arguments made in the essay.

💡 Suggestions:

- The conclusion should directly echo the introduction and body by summarizing key takeaways succinctly:
    - "Globalization has reshaped economies, societies, and politics, offering immense opportunities while also deepening inequalities. While outright protectionism is not the answer, a more balanced and equitable globalization model is essential."
  - Trim repetitive parts and ensure a concise, sharp closing.

Visionary or Inspirational Tone

Comprehensive Answer Evaluation Report by PRAGYESH IAS

✓ Strengths:

- The conclusion tries to offer a positive outlook by advocating for a balanced, inclusive globalization model.
- The mention of "redistributing benefits" and "creating safety nets" aligns with a progressive, reformist approach.

✗ Areas for Improvement:

- The tone is informative rather than inspirational—it lacks a call to action or a visionary closing thought.
- The essay ends abruptly without an impactful final sentence that leaves the reader with a strong takeaway.

💡 Suggestions:

- End on a forward-looking, optimistic note:
  - "The challenge of our times is not to resist globalization but to shape it into a force for good—one that uplifts the marginalized, fosters sustainability, and ensures shared prosperity."
- Use a powerful closing line to leave an impact:
  - "Let globalization not be a race to the bottom, but a journey toward shared progress and human dignity."

Rhetorical Techniques

✓ Strengths:

- The conclusion attempts to use contrast (protectionism vs. inclusive globalization).

✗ Areas for Improvement:

- No use of rhetorical devices like repetition, poetic expressions, or metaphors.
- The language is too straightforward, missing an opportunity to elevate the emotional appeal.

💡 Suggestions:

Comprehensive Answer Evaluation Report by PRAGYESH IAS

- Introduce rhetorical elements like repetition:
  - "Globalization is not the enemy. Globalization is not the villain. But globalization must be made fair."
- Use a metaphor or analogy:
  - "Like a river, globalization must flow freely but be channeled wisely to prevent floods of inequality."

6. Additional Checklist ✓

Language and Grammar

✓ Strengths:

- Grammar and spelling are mostly correct, with no major language errors.
- Sentences are clear and structured well.

✗ Areas for Improvement:

- Some sentences are too long and should be broken down for better readability.
- A few awkward phrasings (e.g., "balancing protectionism with openness is crucial" could be rewritten as "A balance between protectionism and openness is essential.").
- Repetitions—phrases like "equitable progress" and "inclusive globalization" appear multiple times without variation.

💡 Suggestions:

- Improve sentence clarity:
  - Original: "We should adopt policies focusing on redistributing the benefits of globalization and creating safety nets."
  - Revised: "Policies must ensure globalization's benefits are equitably shared, with safety nets to protect the vulnerable."
- Avoid repetitive words and phrases—use synonyms or rephrase concepts.

Tone and Style

Comprehensive Answer Evaluation Report by PRAGYESH IAS

✓ Strengths:

- Professional and formal—appropriate for a UPSC essay.
- Balanced in argumentation, without extreme ideological bias.

✗ Areas for Improvement:

- The style sometimes feels too descriptive rather than analytical.
- The lack of strong transition sentences makes the writing less engaging.

💡 Suggestions:

- Use more analytical statements:
  - Instead of: "Globalization has both benefits and challenges."
  - Say: "The paradox of globalization is that it fuels both prosperity and inequality—creating a world that is interconnected yet deeply divided."
- Add transition phrases to improve flow:
  - "This leads to...", "Consequently...", "Thus, a more nuanced approach is required."

---

Word Limit and Focus

✓ Strengths:

- The essay stays within the expected UPSC word limit (1000–1200 words).

✗ Areas for Improvement:

- Some sections are wordy, and certain arguments are repeated in different ways.
- The commodification of women and digital economy sections feel less relevant to the main argument.

💡 Suggestions:

- Trim unnecessary parts:

Comprehensive Answer Evaluation Report by PRAGYESH IAS

- Instead of: "There is a need to create a more equitable society that addresses the concerns of the marginalized and vulnerable."
- Say: "An equitable society must prioritize marginalized voices."
- Remove tangential discussions (e.g., a brief mention of gender issues is fine, but it doesn't fit as a core argument in a globalization essay).

2. Essay Evaluation

1. Consistency

Thematic Uniformity

Strengths:

- The essay largely remains aligned with the theme of globalization in a multipolar world.
- The discussion of India and China's rise, their economic transformation, and global governance is relevant to the central topic.
- The essay appropriately references historical and contemporary events (e.g., World War II, Cold War, 1991 economic reforms, Belt and Road Initiative, Chandrayaan-3).

Areas for Improvement:

- Some sections (e.g., historical context of World War I and the Great Depression) feel lengthy and deviate slightly from the essay's primary focus.
- The "Commodification of Women" section appears loosely connected to the main theme and could be reframed in the context of globalization's socio-economic effects instead of a standalone issue.

◆ Suggestion:

Comprehensive Answer Evaluation Report by PRAGYESH IAS

- Trim historical background to keep it concise and directly relevant to globalization.
  - Refocus sections unrelated to economic and geopolitical changes under globalization.

Balanced Coverage

  - Environmental: India's role in the International Solar Alliance
  - Geopolitical: Border conflicts, Indo-China relations, global governance

Areas for Improvement:

- Cultural aspects of globalization are minimally discussed.
- Environmental challenges (e.g., climate change, carbon footprint of globalization) could be explored more deeply.

♦ Suggestion:

- Briefly discuss cultural shifts due to globalization (e.g., impact on local languages, traditions, lifestyle changes).
  - Expand the section on climate change and sustainable globalization.

Logical Consistency

Strengths:

- The essay follows a logical structure, progressing from historical context → economic transformations → geopolitical impact → global governance.

Comprehensive Answer Evaluation Report by PRAGYESH IAS

✖ Areas for Improvement:

- Some arguments appear disconnected, especially when transitioning between historical events and modern globalization trends.
- The "LET CHINA AND INDIA" section feels sloganeering rather than analytical.

◆ Suggestion:

- Improve connectivity by explicitly linking historical examples to modern globalization trends.
- Rephrase "LET CHINA AND INDIA" as an analytical conclusion rather than a bullet-point vision statement.

2. Coherency

Logical Sequence

✓ Strengths:

- The essay progresses in a structured manner from past to present to future perspectives.

✖ Areas for Improvement:

- The World War I & Great Depression section interrupts the flow before moving into globalization.
- The "Commodification of Women" section appears sudden without a strong lead-in.

◆ Suggestion:

- Condense historical context to 2-3 lines and immediately link it to modern globalization.
- Introduce women's issues in globalization within a broader social impact discussion.

Transitions and Connectors

Comprehensive Answer Evaluation Report by PRAGYESH IAS

✓ Strengths:

- The essay effectively transitions between India and China's economic rise and global governance.

✗ Areas for Improvement:

- Some sudden topic jumps (e.g., from IT industry to border conflicts).
- Some sections lack transition phrases (e.g., moving from Indo-China competition to digital economy).

◆ Suggestion:

- Use transition sentences like:
  - "While economic integration has fueled globalization, geopolitical tensions remain a challenge..."
  - "Beyond economic and technological aspects, globalization also impacts social structures, including gender dynamics."

---

Thematic Linkage

✓ Strengths:

- The India-China focus is consistent throughout the essay.

✗ Areas for Improvement:

- Some sections (protectionism, misinformation, media polarization) feel disjointed from the economic focus.

◆ Suggestion:

- Integrate protectionism and misinformation within discussions on global trade wars, digital sovereignty, and geopolitics.

---

✓ Strengths:

- The essay demonstrates a strong understanding of globalization, particularly from an economic and geopolitical standpoint.
- It effectively covers key global shifts, such as the rise of China and India, technological advancements, and multipolar global governance.

✗ Areas for Improvement:

- Some arguments remain surface-level and need more depth:
  - The impact of globalization on local economies beyond India and China is not well explored.
  - Technological globalization is briefly mentioned (e.g., Beidou, IT industry) but needs more depth regarding AI, cybersecurity, and automation.
  - Cultural globalization is almost absent, missing discussions on Westernization, loss of indigenous traditions, or digital cultural diffusion (e.g., OTT platforms, social media globalization).
- ♦ Suggestions:
  - Deepen the analysis of how globalization affects smaller economies (e.g., Africa, Latin America, Southeast Asia).
  - Discuss the influence of global digital platforms (e.g., Amazon, TikTok, Meta) in shaping consumer culture and media globalization.
  - Include perspectives on the future of automation and artificial intelligence in global economies.

♦ Suggestions:

- Add data-backed insights, such as GDP comparisons, FDI trends, or WTO trade statistics to support claims about economic globalization.
- Use recent reports (e.g., World Bank, IMF, WTO) to support claims about digital globalization and trade flows.

Balanced Perspective

✓ Strengths:

- The essay acknowledges both opportunities and challenges of globalization.
- The benefits of globalization (economic growth, technology, trade expansion) are well explored.
- The challenges (protectionism, job displacement, economic inequality) are discussed.

✗ Areas for Improvement:

- The essay leans slightly towards economic globalization without sufficiently discussing its human impact (social, cultural, and ethical).
- The negative effects of globalization on income inequality, environmental degradation, and labor exploitation are underexplored.

♦ Suggestions:

- Include perspectives on global inequality (e.g., how globalization has benefited corporations more than workers).

Comprehensive Answer Evaluation Report by PRAGYESH IAS

- Discuss the environmental costs of globalization, such as carbon emissions from global supply chains and overconsumption.
- Provide a balanced critique of globalization, incorporating perspectives from developed and developing nations.

Multidimensional Approach

- Mentions historical transformations, including World War II, Cold War, and India's liberalization.

Areas for Improvement:

- Social and cultural globalization are weakly developed.
- Environmental and ethical concerns are minimally mentioned.

♦ Suggestions:

- Introduce cultural globalization (e.g., impact of Hollywood, McDonaldization, language shifts, digital influence).

- Discuss the environmental consequences of globalization, such as climate change, deforestation, and resource depletion.

Examples and Case Studies

Strengths:

- Good use of case studies, including:
  - Belt and Road Initiative (China)
  - Chandrayaan-3 (India's space dominance)
  - India's IT sector and demographic dividend

Areas for Improvement:

Comprehensive Answer Evaluation Report by PRAGYESH IAS

- Some examples are overused (e.g., China's rise is mentioned repeatedly).
- There is a lack of global case studies, such as:
  - Africa's engagement in globalization (e.g., China-Africa trade deals)
  - Europe's response to globalization (e.g., Brexit, EU trade policies)
  - US policies on globalization (e.g., Trump-era protectionism, Biden's CHIPS Act)
- ♦ Suggestions:
  - Include examples from Latin America, Africa, and the European Union to present a holistic view of globalization.
  - Provide specific case studies of global trade agreements (e.g., NAFTA, RCEP, CPTPP).
  - Mention real-world companies that symbolize globalization (e.g., Tesla, Apple, TSMC for supply chains).

4. Introduction

Engaging Hook

Strengths:

- The introduction immediately sets the stage for globalization in a multipolar world.
- References India and China's global influence, which is relevant to the essay theme.

Areas for Improvement:

- The opening line lacks a compelling hook (e.g., a quote, thought-provoking question, or striking fact).
- Could benefit from a more engaging start to capture the reader's attention.

♦ Suggestions:

Comprehensive Answer Evaluation Report by PRAGYESH IAS

• Possible alternative opening:

"In 2023, India became the first nation to land near the Moon's South Pole, while China's Belt and Road Initiative reshaped global trade routes. These events signal a tectonic shift in globalization—where emerging powers like India and China are no longer just participants but key architects of the world economy."

Context Setting

✓ Strengths:

- Provides background on globalization and shifting global power.
- Mentions historical economic shifts (World War II, Cold War, 1991 liberalization).

✗ Areas for Improvement:

- Some historical background is excessive (e.g., Great Depression, WWII could be condensed).
- Lack of clarity on the essay's structure—the main arguments aren't previewed well.

◆ Suggestions:

- Summarize historical shifts in 2-3 lines, ensuring the focus remains on modern globalization.
- Add a roadmap sentence outlining the essay's key dimensions (e.g., economic, political, technological, and cultural globalization).

Central Theme or Thesis Statement

✓ Strengths:

- The essay clearly states that globalization is evolving in a multipolar world.
- It mentions key players (India, China, USA, and global governance institutions).

✖ Areas for Improvement:

- The thesis statement should be more explicitly structured.
- The scope of the essay (economic, geopolitical, technological aspects) should be clearer.

◆ Suggestions:

- Stronger thesis statement example:

"The global order is undergoing a fundamental shift as emerging economies like India and China take center stage. This essay examines the evolving nature of globalization through economic, political, and technological dimensions, assessing both its opportunities and challenges in a multipolar world."

5. Conclusion ☀

Summarizing the Core Argument

✓ Strengths:

- The conclusion recaps the main points about India and China's rise in globalization and the challenges posed by protectionism, technological shifts, and economic transformation.
- It restates the importance of cooperation rather than confrontation in a multipolar world.

✖ Areas for Improvement:

- The summary is slightly scattered, and some arguments are repeated unnecessarily.
- The final message should be stronger—it does not clearly outline the key takeaways in a concise, impactful manner.
- The impact of globalization on marginalized communities is not well highlighted, leaving a gap in the holistic understanding of globalization.

◆ Suggestions:

Comprehensive Answer Evaluation Report by PRAGYESH IAS

- Structure the conclusion more clearly:
    1. Restate the central argument in one concise sentence.
    2. Summarize key insights (economic shifts, geopolitical transformations, and socio-political challenges).
    3. End with a powerful, forward-looking statement on how globalization should be shaped for an equitable world.

Visionary or Inspirational Tone

Strengths:

- The conclusion attempts to provide a forward-looking perspective, mentioning cooperation, inclusivity, and sustainable globalization.

Areas for Improvement:

- The tone lacks a strong call to action—it does not leave the reader inspired or compelled to reflect on the future of globalization.
- The message could be more optimistic and solution-oriented, focusing on how globalization can evolve in a positive direction.
- There is no mention of global governance institutions (e.g., UN, WTO, G20) shaping a sustainable global future.

♦ Suggestions:

- Add a closing statement that inspires hope and action. Example:
“As the world transitions towards a multipolar order, globalization must not be dictated by competition alone but by cooperation, inclusivity, and ethical governance. The responsibility lies not only with governments and corporations but with individuals, fostering a world where progress does not come at the cost of justice and equality.”

Rhetorical Techniques

Strengths:

- Some rhetorical strategies are present, such as parallel structure and contrast (e.g., globalization as a boon and a bane).

Comprehensive Answer Evaluation Report by PRAGYESH IAS

- The mention of India and China's role adds weight to the final argument.

✖ Areas for Improvement:

- The conclusion does not use impactful literary devices like metaphors, alliterations, or rhetorical questions.
- The tone is informative rather than evocative, making it less emotionally engaging.

◆ Suggestions:

- Introduce a metaphor or poetic device:
  - Example: "Globalization is a tide that lifts all boats—but only if the waves of inequality and exploitation do not capsize the weaker ones."
- Use a rhetorical question to engage the reader:
  - "Will we let globalization be driven solely by economic might, or can we shape it to empower the most vulnerable?"

6. Additional Checklist ✓

Language and Grammar 📖

✓ Strengths:

- The language is formal and appropriate for UPSC standards.
- The essay avoids colloquialisms and maintains an academic tone.

✖ Areas for Improvement:

- Some sentences are unnecessarily long and complex, making them harder to read.
- Minor grammatical errors (e.g., subject-verb agreement issues and awkward phrasing).
- Some transitions between paragraphs are abrupt, making it feel slightly disjointed.

◆ Suggestions:

Comprehensive Answer Evaluation Report by PRAGYESH IAS

- Break long sentences into shorter, clearer ones.
- Use active voice more frequently to make arguments more direct and assertive.
- Example:
  - Current sentence:
“The changing global order, driven by economic shifts, technological advancements, and geopolitical power struggles, requires cooperation from nations rather than confrontation.”
  - Revised sentence:
“Globalization is shaped by economic shifts, technological advancements, and geopolitical struggles. To navigate this transformation, nations must prioritize cooperation over conflict.”

Tone and Style 🎭

✓ Strengths:

- The tone is formal and analytical, appropriate for UPSC standards.
- The argumentation is well-researched and avoids emotional bias.

✗ Areas for Improvement:

- Some sections are too academic and lack readability.
- The style could be more engaging—it should not only inform but also persuade the reader.

◆ Suggestions:

- Use a mix of analytical depth and storytelling to maintain engagement.
- Example:
  - Instead of saying “China’s economic policies have made it a global superpower,”
  - Say “With strategic policies, China has transitioned from a manufacturing hub to an economic superpower, shaping global trade and finance.”

Comprehensive Answer Evaluation Report by PRAGYESH IAS

Word Limit and Focus 🖊

✓ Strengths:

- The essay is within a reasonable length for UPSC standards.
- It avoids unnecessary filler content.

✗ Areas for Improvement:

- Some arguments are repeated in different sections (e.g., China's rise and protectionism are discussed multiple times).
- A few examples could be removed or replaced with more relevant ones.

◆ Suggestions:

- Trim redundant points and rephrase repetitive arguments.
- Ensure each paragraph adds new value rather than restating previous ideas.

3. Essay Evaluation

1. Consistency

Thematic Uniformity

✓ The essay consistently addresses the boon vs. bane argument of globalisation, maintaining strong thematic alignment throughout. It effectively contrasts opportunities and challenges while linking examples to the central theme.

⚠ However, some sections stray into broader discussions of India's geopolitical rise (e.g., BRI, G20 leadership, Delhi Consensus). These discussions, while relevant, should be more explicitly tied to the theme of globalisation being a boon or bane.

Suggestion:

Comprehensive Answer Evaluation Report by PRAGYESH IAS

- Ensure that every example explicitly connects back to globalisation's positive or negative impacts.
- Avoid long digressions on India's rise as a global power unless directly linked to the central debate.

Balanced Coverage

- ✓ The essay does a great job covering economic, social, historical, and political dimensions.
- ✓ The historical context (Indus Valley, Mauryan Empire, Chola Dynasty) effectively establishes globalisation's roots.
- ✓ The economic perspective is well-developed, particularly with labour shifts, IT growth, and platform capitalism.
- ✓ The social impact of globalisation is discussed through women's commodification, job security, and cultural conflicts.
- ✓ The political perspective is covered through trade policies, governance, and international organisations.

⚠ Underexplored dimensions:

- Environmental impact: The essay does not address how globalisation affects climate change, resource exploitation, or sustainability.
- Ethical considerations: While the "tyranny of the majority" and exploitation of workers are mentioned, a more direct discussion on ethics in globalisation (e.g., fairness in trade, corporate responsibility) would strengthen the analysis.

Suggestion:

- Add a brief section on environmental sustainability and how globalisation affects climate change, pollution, and resource depletion.
- Introduce ethical debates such as "fair trade vs. free trade" or corporate social responsibility.

Logical Consistency

- ✓ The arguments follow a logical sequence, progressing from historical background → opportunities → challenges → concluding thoughts.
- ✓ The examples (India's IT sector, sweatshops, AI-driven job loss, China's BRI, post-truth era) align with the core argument.

Comprehensive Answer Evaluation Report by PRAGYESH IAS

⚠ Some sections feel abrupt or disconnected:

- Delhi Consensus, G20 leadership, and India's diplomatic rise could be better tied back to the boon vs. bane theme.
- The conclusion brings in Gandhi's Sarvodaya suddenly, without a gradual build-up.

Suggestion:

- Make explicit connections between globalisation's impact and India's rising global role.
- Introduce Gandhi's philosophy earlier (perhaps in the ethical discussion) to avoid an abrupt mention at the end.

2. Coherency

Logical Sequence

- ✓ The essay is well-structured, beginning with a narrative example (Kritika's dilemma), historical roots, opportunities, challenges, and conclusion.
- ✓ The flow is smooth from history → economic impact → societal effects → geopolitical changes → conclusion.

⚠ Areas for improvement:

- The geopolitical discussion (China's BRI, India's global role) appears later, making it seem separate from the core argument.
- The introduction and conclusion feel slightly disjointed from the main body.

Suggestion:

- Integrate geopolitical points within the broader discussion of globalisation's impact.
- Ensure that the conclusion reflects the key arguments rather than introducing new ideas.

Transitions and Connectors

Comprehensive Answer Evaluation Report by PRAGYESH IAS

- ✓ The essay uses connecting phrases to move between historical, economic, and social arguments.
- ✓ There is a strong connection between sections, particularly between economic opportunities and challenges.

⚠ However, some transitions could be smoother:

- The shift from the historical section to the economic section feels abrupt.
- The "Tyranny of Majority" argument suddenly appears after discussing China and India's leadership role.

Suggestion:

- Use transition phrases like:
  - "Building on this historical foundation, the modern world faces new challenges..."
  - "Beyond economic opportunities, globalisation also brings social and political consequences..."

Thematic Linkage

- ✓ The essay's arguments remain focused on globalisation's impact.
- ✓ The narrative of Kritika's story effectively frames the discussion and is referenced in the conclusion.

⚠ Some sections feel slightly disconnected:

- The G20, BRI, and China's rise discussion feels more like a political analysis rather than a direct assessment of globalisation's effects.

Suggestion:

- Emphasise how these geopolitical shifts directly impact developing nations' economies, labour markets, and culture.

3. Content Evaluation

Depth and Relevance

Comprehensive Answer Evaluation Report by PRAGYESH IAS

- ✓ The essay provides a well-rounded discussion of globalisation's boon vs. bane debate.
- ✓ It includes historical context (Indus Valley, Mauryan Empire, Chola Dynasty), economic effects (labour shifts, IT sector growth, platform capitalism), and geopolitical changes (China's BRI, India's rise).
- ✓ The analysis is insightful, going beyond surface-level discussions by exploring economic, political, and social impacts.

⚠ Areas for deeper analysis:

- The impact of automation and AI on global labour markets could be explored more.
- The challenges of income inequality due to globalisation need a more structured discussion.
- Case studies from Latin America or Africa would provide a more global perspective.

Suggestions for Improvement:

- Introduce a brief discussion on how AI and automation will reshape global employment patterns.
- Discuss how some countries (e.g., Brazil, South Africa) have struggled under globalisation.
- Address how globalisation has contributed to economic crises (e.g., 2008 financial crisis).

Factual Accuracy

- ✓ The essay correctly identifies how India and China have benefited from globalisation.
- ✓ It references accurate historical events (e.g., World War II's role in reshaping the global order, China's Belt and Road Initiative, India's IT sector growth).
- ✓ The mention of platform capitalism and digitalisation is relevant and factually correct.

⚠ Minor inaccuracies or areas needing more clarity:

Comprehensive Answer Evaluation Report by PRAGYESH IAS

- The discussion on ‘Delhi Consensus’ needs a clearer explanation of how it differs from the ‘Washington Consensus.’
- The Belt and Road Initiative (BRI) is presented mainly as a geopolitical tool—mention economic benefits and criticisms.

Suggestions for Improvement:

- Clarify how Delhi Consensus promotes state-led development over neoliberal policies.
- Mention both pros and cons of China’s BRI (e.g., infrastructure development vs. debt trap diplomacy).

Balanced Perspective

- ✓ The essay presents both advantages and disadvantages of globalisation.
- ✓ The positive impacts (economic growth, job creation, innovation) are well-developed.
- ✓ The negative impacts (income inequality, cultural erosion, job loss) are also well-articulated.
- ✓ It includes contrasting perspectives, such as how globalisation benefits some but harms others (e.g., Kritika vs. her father’s dilemma).

⚠ One-sided areas:

- The political section leans heavily on criticisms of globalisation (e.g., commodification of women, exploitation).
- The environmental consequences of globalisation are underdeveloped.

Suggestions for Improvement:

- Include more positive examples of globalisation’s role in poverty reduction (e.g., China lifting millions out of poverty).
- Discuss how green globalisation (renewable energy, global climate accords) can mitigate environmental damage.

Multidimensional Approach

Comprehensive Answer Evaluation Report by PRAGYESH IAS

- ✓ The essay covers social, political, economic, and historical dimensions.
- ✓ It includes international relations (BRI, G20, post-WWII institutions like the UN, IMF).
- ✓ The cultural aspect (commodification of women, diversity, nationalism) is present.

⚠ Missing or underdeveloped dimensions:

- Environmental impact of globalisation (climate change, deforestation, pollution).
- Ethical concerns, such as corporate responsibility, tax avoidance by MNCs, or fair trade policies.

Suggestions for Improvement:

- Add a section on how climate change agreements (Paris Agreement) are shaped by globalisation.
- Discuss the role of ethical business practices (e.g., fair trade, CSR) in globalisation.

Examples and Case Studies

- ✓ The essay uses strong examples such as China's economic rise, India's IT sector, sweatshops, AI-driven job loss.
- ✓ The Kritika anecdote personalises the argument and makes it relatable.

⚠ Areas needing more case studies:

- More examples from Africa and Latin America to avoid an Indo-China centric approach.
- Examples of countries that resisted globalisation (e.g., North Korea, Venezuela) to show alternative models.

Suggestions for Improvement:

- Mention how Bangladesh has benefited from globalisation in textile exports.
- Discuss how European nations (e.g., France, Germany) handle globalisation differently than the US or China.

4. Introduction Evaluation

Engaging Hook

- ✓ The essay begins with a compelling anecdote (Kritika and her father's dilemma), making the topic relatable.
- ✓ The contrast between opportunity and crisis is immediately established.

⚠ Potential Improvement:

- A thought-provoking quote or statistic about globalisation's impact could strengthen the opening.

Example:

"Globalisation has lifted over a billion people out of poverty, yet it has also left millions struggling to survive in a digital economy."

Context Setting

- ✓ The essay provides a solid background on globalisation.
- ✓ It mentions historical trade networks (Indus Valley, Mauryan Empire, Chola Dynasty).
- ✓ The post-World War II institutions (UN, IMF, WTO) are introduced effectively.

⚠ Minor Weakness:

- The historical context is slightly long. While useful, it delays the main argument.

Suggestion:

- Keep the historical background concise and quickly transition into the boon vs. bane debate.

Central Theme or Thesis Statement

Comprehensive Answer Evaluation Report by PRAGYESH IAS

- ✓ The essay clearly presents the central theme of whether globalisation is a boon or bane.
- ✓ It sets up a balanced perspective, indicating that globalisation presents both opportunities and challenges.

⚠ Potential Improvement:

- The thesis statement could be more explicitly stated.
- Instead of implying that globalisation has both positive and negative effects, clearly state it in a single line.

Example:

"While globalisation has driven economic growth, innovation, and cultural exchange, it has also exacerbated inequalities, job insecurity, and environmental degradation. This essay explores whether it is ultimately a boon or a bane."

5. Conclusion Evaluation

Summarizing the Core Argument

- ✓ The conclusion effectively recaps the boon vs. bane debate on globalisation.
- ✓ The final paragraph links back to the introduction (Kritika's story) and reinforces the core dilemma of globalisation's dual nature.
- ✓ The mention of Gandhian philosophy (Sarvodaya) is a strong thematic link, emphasizing inclusive progress.

⚠ Areas for Improvement:

- The summary could be more concise—some points are repetitive and already covered in the body.
- The phrase 'globalisation is an existential reality' is impactful but could be expanded with a solution-driven approach.

Suggested Improvement:

- Rephrase to a sharper, more structured summary that briefly restates the pros and cons without redundancy.

Comprehensive Answer Evaluation Report by PRAGYESH IAS

- Instead of listing various points, create a final unifying statement that connects the arguments cohesively.

- Example of an Improved Summary:

"Globalisation is neither an absolute boon nor a complete bane—it is an evolving force that shapes economies, societies, and cultures. While it opens doors to progress, it also creates deep challenges that nations must navigate with prudence. The need of the hour is to embrace an inclusive, sustainable approach that maximises benefits while mitigating disparities. In this journey, developing nations must ensure that globalisation serves not just the privileged few but reaches the 'last man standing,' in alignment with Gandhi's Sarvodaya."

Visionary or Inspirational Tone

- The conclusion offers a balanced perspective, acknowledging both challenges and opportunities.
- It ends on a positive note—advocating for inclusive policies, balance, and adaptation.
- The Sarvodaya reference adds philosophical depth, aligning with UPSC's expectations.

⚠ How to Make it More Impactful:

- Introduce a powerful final statement or rhetorical flourish that leaves a memorable impression.
- Instead of just suggesting balanced policies, frame it as a call to action—how nations, individuals, and institutions can drive change.

- Example of an Improved Inspirational Ending:

"The future of globalisation is not predetermined—it will be shaped by the choices we make today. Nations must move beyond the binary of boon or bane and actively redefine globalisation to serve humanity equitably. By fostering inclusivity, sustainability, and ethical governance, we can transform globalisation into a force that uplifts all, rather than a select few. As the world transitions into a multipolar order, India and other emerging nations have the responsibility to lead this transformation, ensuring that globalisation's benefits are shared universally, leaving no one behind."

Rhetorical Techniques

- ✓ The essay incorporates rhetorical elements such as contrast (boon vs. bane), anecdotes (Kritika), and historical references (Sarvodaya).
- ✓ The use of repetition ('boon and bane') reinforces the theme.
- ✓ The final call for balanced policies and inclusivity resonates well.

⚠ Opportunities to Strengthen the Rhetorical Appeal:

- Introduce a metaphor or powerful imagery to make the final takeaway more vivid.
- Use alliteration, parallel structure, or poetic phrasing for enhanced impact.

♦ Example of an Improved Rhetorical Ending:

"Globalisation is like a river—it can nourish civilizations, but if left unchecked, it can flood and destroy. The world stands at a crossroads, where the choice is no longer whether to embrace globalisation, but how to shape it for the collective good. Only through ethical leadership, sustainable policies, and global cooperation can we ensure that globalisation flows toward progress rather than disparity."

6. Additional Checklist

- ✓ The vocabulary is sophisticated but accessible.

⚠ Minor Improvements:

- Some sentences are overly long—breaking them into shorter, precise statements will enhance readability.
- A few repetitive phrases ('boon and bane' used frequently)—could be replaced with synonyms or reworded.
